CHAPTER ONE

The Story of Jaipur

Long before Jaipur existed, the Kachhwaha Rajputs ruled from the hilltop fortress-palace of Amer, guarding the trade routes through the Aravalli hills. By the early 18th century, a growing population and a shortage of water pushed Maharaja Sawai Jai Singh II – a brilliant ruler, astronomer and mathematician – to plan a new capital on the plains below.

On 18 November 1727 the foundations of Jaipur were laid. Working with the Bengali architect Vidyadhar Bhattacharya, Jai Singh designed one of India's earliest planned cities, guided by the ancient principles of Vastu Shastra and Shilpa Shastra. Broad straight streets, a grid of blocks, great public squares called chaupars and a fortified wall pierced by gates made the city remarkably modern for its time.

In 1876, Maharaja Sawai Ram Singh II had the old city painted a terracotta pink – the colour of hospitality – to welcome Albert Edward, Prince of Wales. The colour stayed, and Jaipur became famous as the "Pink City". Its historic façades still keep this warm shade today.

After independence, the princely state of Jaipur joined the Indian Union, and on 30 March 1949 – now celebrated as Rajasthan Day – Jaipur became the capital of Rajasthan. In 2019 the walled city was inscribed as a UNESCO World Heritage Site, joining Jantar Mantar (2010) and Amer Fort (2013, as one of the Hill Forts of Rajasthan).

CHAPTER ONE

A City Built by Design

Jaipur's old city is a living museum of town planning. Its streets run in a grid and meet at large squares (chaupars) that once served as market places and meeting points. The most important are Badi Chaupar, Chhoti Chaupar and Ramganj Chaupar. Each neighbourhood (mohalla) and lane (rasta) was given to a particular community of craftsmen or traders – and many still carry their names today.

The city wall was entered through grand gates. Chandpol (the Moon Gate) in the west and Suraj Pol (the Sun Gate) in the east mirror the path of the sun across the sky. Other well-known gates include Ajmeri Gate, New Gate, Sanganeri Gate, Ghat Gate and Zorawar Singh Gate.

Streets with Stories

Johari Bazaar
The jewellers' market – gems, gold, silver and textiles.

Tripolia Bazaar
Named after the triple-arched Tripolia Gate of the City Palace.

Maniharon ka Rasta
The lane of lac-bangle makers.

Khajane Walon ka Rasta
Home of marble and stone carvers.

Chaura Rasta
The "wide road" – famous for books and stationery.

Gangauri Bazaar
On the route of the royal Gangaur procession.

Did You Know?

- Rajasthan's cities are known by colour: Jaipur is pink, Jodhpur blue, Jaisalmer golden and Udaipur white.
- The city is named after its founder, Sawai Jai Singh II.
- Jaipur, Delhi and Agra together form India's famous "Golden Triangle" tourist circuit.

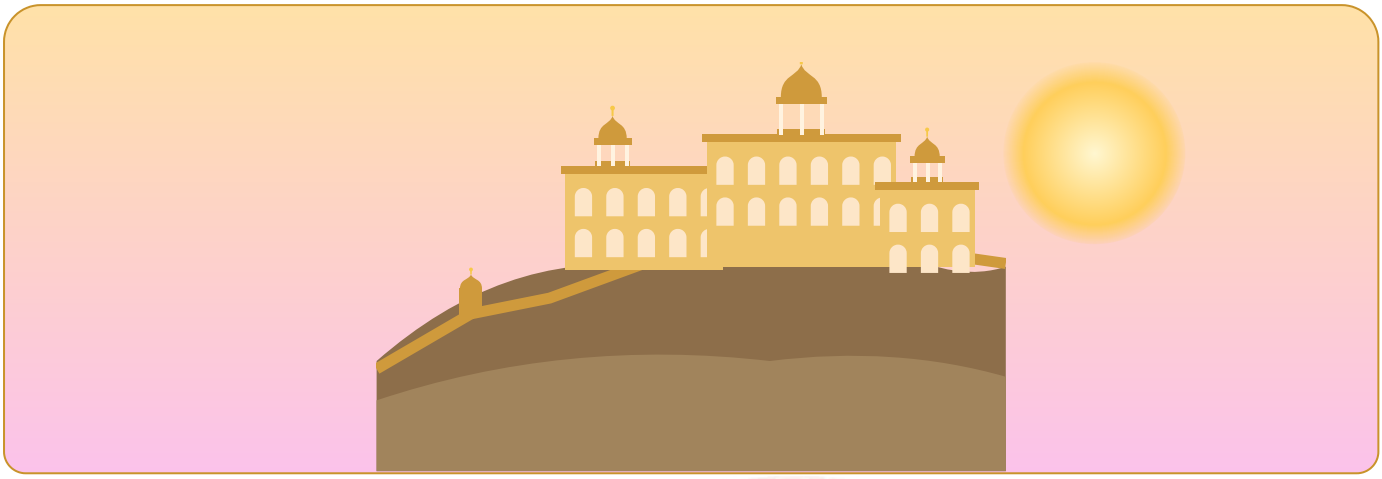

Three UNESCO World Heritage Sites

- Jantar Mantar – inscribed 2010
- Amer Fort – 2013, as one of the Hill Forts of Rajasthan
- The Walled City of Jaipur – 2019

CHAPTER TWO · MONUMENTS

Amer Fort & Palace

Rising above Maota Lake in the Aravalli hills, Amer was the capital of the Kachhwaha Rajputs until 1727. Built of red sandstone and white marble, the palace blends Rajput and Mughal styles across a series of courtyards, each more private than the one before.

Visitors enter through Suraj Pol into Jaleb Chowk, where armies once paraded, then climb to the Diwan-i-Aam, whose columns are crowned with elephant-shaped capitals. Beyond the painted Ganesh Pol lie the royal apartments – including the dazzling Sheesh Mahal, where thousands of mirror pieces sparkle like a starry sky in candlelight.

Amer and Jaigarh Fort, on the ridge above, are linked by a passage and were planned as one defensive complex. In 2013, Amer was inscribed as a UNESCO World Heritage Site as one of the Hill Forts of Rajasthan.

At a Glance

Built	From 1592 onwards
Built by	Raja Man Singh I; expanded by later Kachhwaha rulers
Location	Amer, about 11 km north of the old city
Time needed	2.5 – 3 hours
Best time	8 – 10 am, at opening
Entry (Indian / Foreigner)	₹200 / ₹1,000

Don't Miss

- ★ Sheesh Mahal (Jai Mandir) – the famous Mirror Palace
- ★ Ganesh Pol – the frescoed gateway to the private palace
- ★ Sukh Niwas – a hall cooled by channels of flowing water
- ★ Diwan-i-Aam – the hall of public audience
- ★ Kesar Kyari – the saffron garden in Maota Lake, best seen from the road below

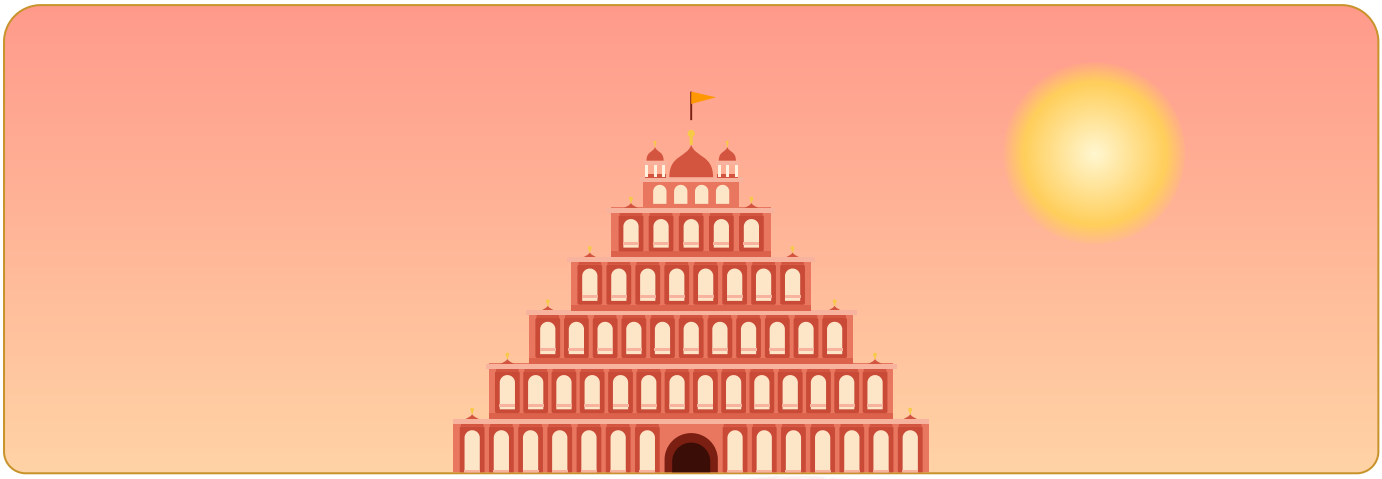

Insider Tips

- ❖ Arrive at opening time to beat the crowds and the midday heat.
- ❖ Walk up the ramp from the lake side, or take a jeep up to the main gate.
- ❖ The evening light & sound show tells the story of the fort – check show times and language at the counter.
- ❖ Combine with Panna Meena ka Kund and Jaigarh Fort on the same trip.

CHAPTER TWO · MONUMENTS

Hawa Mahal

Jaipur's most photographed building is not a palace to live in but a magnificent screen. Its five-storey honeycomb façade of pink sandstone holds 953 small jharokhas (latticed windows), allowing the royal ladies to watch festivals and street life below while remaining unseen, in keeping with the custom of purdah.

Its design is said to resemble the crown of Lord Krishna, to whom Sawai Pratap Singh was devoted. The latticework also acts as natural air-conditioning: breezes flow through the small windows and cool the rooms – giving the "Palace of Winds" its name.

What most visitors see from the street is actually the back of the building. The entrance is from the City Palace side, through a courtyard; inside, ramps rather than stairs lead to the upper storeys.

At a Glance

Built	1799
Built by	Maharaja Sawai Pratap Singh; architect Lal Chand Ustad
Location	Badi Chaupar, old city
Time needed	45 minutes – 1 hour
Best time	Sunrise for the façade; morning for the inside
Entry (Indian / Foreigner)	₹100 / ₹600

Don't Miss

- ★ The view from the top over the bazaar, City Palace and Nahargarh
- ★ Coloured glass windows that throw rainbow patterns in morning light
- ★ The classic façade from the rooftop cafés across the road
- ★ The ramps used instead of staircases

Insider Tips

- ❖ Photograph the façade early in the morning, when the sun lights it up.
- ❖ The upper floors are narrow – avoid weekends and holiday afternoons.
- ❖ City Palace and Jantar Mantar are a short walk away – visit all three together.

02

CHAPTER TWO · MONUMENTS

City Palace

Spread across a large part of the walled city, the City Palace is still home to Jaipur's former royal family. Begun by Sawai Jai Singh II, it combines Rajput, Mughal and European influences in a series of courtyards, gardens and halls. Much of it now houses the Maharaja Sawai Man Singh II Museum, with royal costumes, arms, paintings and manuscripts.

The seven-storey Chandra Mahal flies the royal flag – a quarter flag is added when the Maharaja is in residence. In the Diwan-i-Khas stand two enormous silver urns, the Gangajali, made to carry holy Ganges water to England for King Edward VII's coronation in 1902. They are recognised as the world's largest sterling-silver vessels.

At a Glance

Built	From 1729 onwards
Built by	Sawai Jai Singh II; additions by later rulers
Location	Heart of the old city
Time needed	2 hours
Best time	Soon after opening
Entry (Indian / Foreigner)	Separate ticket (royal family trust)

Don't Miss

- ★ Pritam Niwas Chowk – four gates for four seasons: Peacock (autumn), Lotus (summer), Green (spring) and Rose (winter)
- ★ The Gangajali silver urns in the Diwan-i-Khas
- ★ Mubarak Mahal – the royal textile gallery
- ★ Sileh Khana – the royal armoury
- ★ Diwan-i-Aam – with grand royal portraits

Insider Tips

- ❖ Guided tours of the private Chandra Mahal rooms are available at extra cost.
- ❖ Photography is restricted in some galleries – follow the signs.
- ❖ Govind Dev Ji Temple lies just behind the palace in the Jai Niwas garden.

02

Jantar Mantar

Sawai Jai Singh II was a passionate astronomer. To improve the accuracy of astronomical tables, he built observatories in five cities – Jaipur, Delhi, Ujjain, Varanasi and Mathura. Jaipur's is the largest and the best preserved. Its 19 giant instruments of stone and marble measure time, track the sun, locate stars and help predict eclipses.

The star attraction is the Vrihat Samrat Yantra, about 27 metres tall – the world's largest stone sundial. Its shadow visibly moves across the dial and can tell local time to about two seconds. Inscribed as a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 2010, Jantar Mantar is where science meets architecture.

At a Glance

Built	c. 1728 – 1734
Built by	Sawai Jai Singh II
Location	Next to City Palace
Time needed	1 – 1.5 hours
Best time	A sunny morning
Entry (Indian / Foreigner)	₹100 / ₹600

Don't Miss

- ★ Vrihat Samrat Yantra – the giant sundial
- ★ Laghu Samrat Yantra – the smaller sundial
- ★ Jai Prakash Yantra – twin hemispheres that map the sky
- ★ Rashivalaya Yantra – twelve instruments, one for each zodiac sign

Insider Tips

- ❖ Take a guide or audio guide – the instruments come alive with explanation.
- ❖ There is very little shade – carry water and a hat.
- ❖ Visit on a sunny day to see the sundials at work.

02

Albert Hall Museum

Named after Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, during whose visit in 1876 its foundation stone was laid, Albert Hall is Rajasthan's oldest museum. Architect Samuel Swinton Jacob designed it in the Indo-Saracenic style – a graceful blend of Indian domes, arches and chhatris with European proportions.

Opened to the public in 1887, its galleries hold an Egyptian mummy, a magnificent 17th-century Persian garden carpet, coins from the Gupta to the British era, miniature paintings, arms and armour, pottery, sculpture and musical instruments. At night the building is beautifully illuminated.

At a Glance

Built	Foundation 1876; opened 1887
Built by	Designed by Samuel Swinton Jacob
Location	Ram Niwas Garden, opposite New Gate
Time needed	1.5 hours
Best time	Daytime for galleries; after 7 pm for the lights
Entry (Indian / Foreigner)	₹100 / ₹600

Don't Miss

- ★ The Egyptian mummy – the museum's most famous exhibit
- ★ The Persian garden carpet – one of the finest of its kind
- ★ Murals based on the Razmnama, the Persian Mahabharata
- ★ The illuminated façade after dark

Insider Tips

- ❖ Visit by day for the galleries and return in the evening for the lights.
- ❖ Masala Chowk food court is right next door – perfect for dinner.
- ❖ Ram Niwas Garden around the museum is lovely for a walk.

02

Nahargarh & Jaigarh Forts

Nahargarh Fort

Built in 1734 by Sawai Jai Singh II as a retreat and defence on the ridge above the city, Nahargarh – the "Tiger Fort" – watches over Jaipur from the Aravalli hills. Legend says the spirit of a local hero, Nahar Singh Bhomia, disturbed the construction until a shrine was built in his honour.

Inside, Madhavendra Bhawan – built by Sawai Madho Singh – has a set of identical suites for the queens, linked by corridors. Most visitors come for the sunset view over the Pink City.

At a Glance

Time needed	1.5 – 2 hours
Best time	Late afternoon to sunset
Entry (Indian / Foreigner)	₹100 / ₹600

Jaigarh Fort

Built in 1726 on the Cheel ka Teela (Hill of Eagles) above Amer, Jaigarh – the "Fort of Victory" – guarded Amer and the treasury of the Kachhwahas. It is linked to Amer Fort by a passage.

Its pride is the Jaivana cannon, cast in 1720 in the fort's own foundry – one of the largest cannons on wheels ever made. Huge rainwater tanks, armoury halls and the Diya Burj watchtower complete the visit.

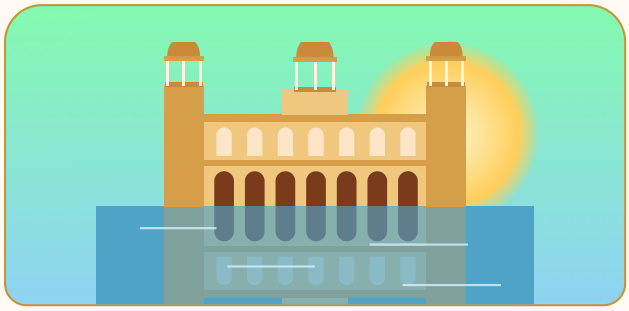

At a Glance

Time needed	1.5 – 2 hours
Best time	Morning, with Amer
Entry (Indian / Foreigner)	Separate ticket

✦ Insider Tips

- The road to Nahargarh is steep and winding – go up at least an hour before sunset.
- Plan Jaigarh right after Amer – they sit on the same hill.
- Padao, the open-air café at Nahargarh, is a classic spot for sunset tea.

Jal Mahal & Patrika Gate

Jal Mahal – the Water Palace

Seemingly floating in Man Sagar Lake on the road to Amer, Jal Mahal is a five-storey palace whose lower floors lie underwater when the lake is full. Built in the 18th century as a royal retreat for duck-shooting parties, it is a vision in sandstone with corner chhatris.

The palace is not open to visitors, but the lakeside promenade offers wonderful views – especially at sunset and when lit up at night. Local stalls sell snacks, toys and camel rides along the promenade.

At a Glance

Time needed	20 – 30 minutes
Best time	Sunset
Entry (Indian / Foreigner)	Free (view from promenade)

Patrika Gate

Standing at the entrance of Jawahar Circle – one of the largest circular parks in Asia – Patrika Gate was built by the Rajasthan Patrika media group. Its arches, pillars and ceilings are painted in vivid colours with scenes of Rajasthan's art, architecture, festivals and history.

It has quickly become Jaipur's favourite photo location. Come early, before the crowds, when the corridors are empty and the light is soft.

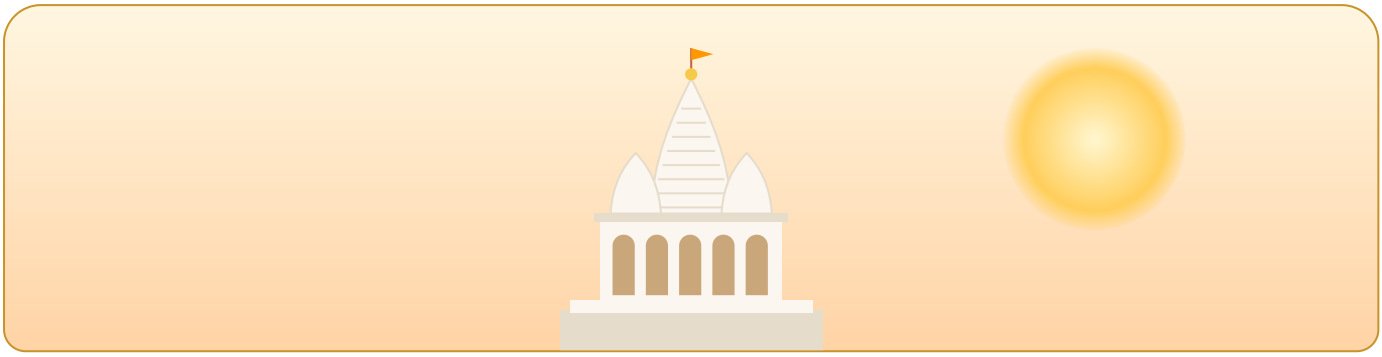

At a Glance

Time needed	30 – 45 minutes
Best time	7 – 9 am
Entry (Indian / Foreigner)	Free

CHAPTER TWO · MONUMENTS

Temples of Jaipur

Govind Dev Ji Temple

Jaipur's most beloved temple, dedicated to Lord Krishna, stands in the Jai Niwas garden behind the City Palace. The deity was brought from Vrindavan, and the royal family regards Govind Dev Ji as the true ruler of Jaipur. Darshan happens in several sessions (jhankis) through the day; Janmashtami and the flower Holi draw huge crowds.

Moti Dungri Ganesh Temple

Built in 1761 at the foot of Moti Dungri hill, this temple of Lord Ganesha is one of the busiest in the city, especially on Wednesdays and during Ganesh Chaturthi, when a large fair takes place. Many families visit here before weddings or buying a new vehicle.

Birla Mandir

This gleaming white-marble Lakshmi Narayan temple, completed in 1988 by the Birla family, sits beside Moti Dungri. Its carvings include figures from many faiths, and its stained-glass windows depict stories from Hindu scriptures. It looks especially beautiful when lit in the evening.

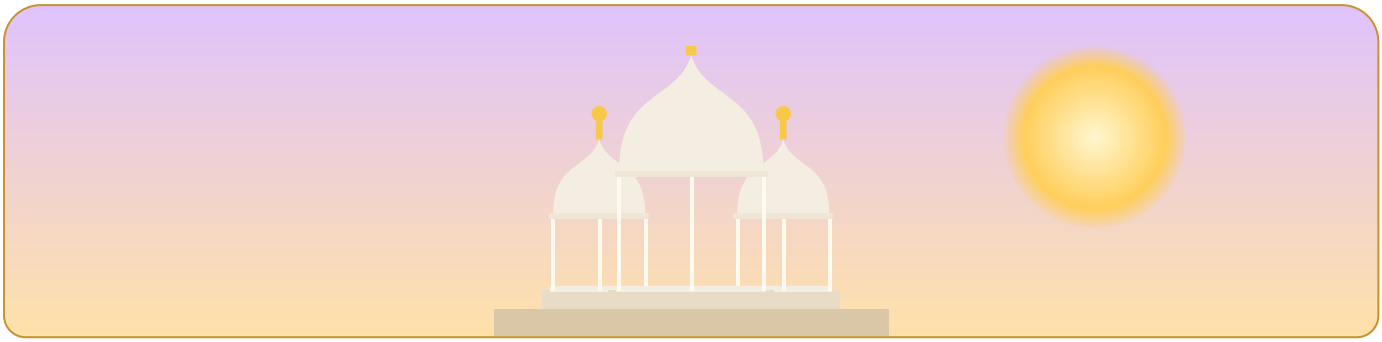

Galtaji Temple

Tucked into a gorge in the hills east of the city, Galtaji is an ancient pilgrimage site with temples and sacred kunds (water tanks) fed by a natural spring. It is home to many monkeys, giving it the nickname "Monkey Temple". Climb to the Surya Mandir on the ridge for sunset views.

✦ Temple Etiquette

- Remove your shoes before entering; most temples have a shoe stand.
- Ask before taking photos inside the sanctum.
- Dress modestly – cover shoulders and knees.
- Do not feed the monkeys at Galtaji, and keep food out of sight.

Stepwells, Gardens & Cenotaphs

Panna Meena ka Kund

A centuries-old stepwell near Amer Fort with mesmerising criss-cross staircases on three sides. It once stored rainwater for the town and was a cool gathering place in summer. Today it is a favourite of photographers.

Sisodia Rani Garden

A terraced Mughal-style garden on the Agra road, built in 1728 by Sawai Jai Singh II for his Sisodia queen. Fountains, water channels and pavilions are decorated with murals of Radha and Krishna.

Vidyadhar Garden

Close to Sisodia Rani Garden, this peaceful terraced garden honours Vidyadhar Bhattacharya, the architect who planned Jaipur. Both gardens are included in the composite ticket.

Royal Gaitor

In a quiet valley below Nahargarh stand the cenotaphs (chhatris) of Jaipur's rulers, carved in marble and sandstone. The chhatri of Sawai Jai Singh II is the most elaborate. Few tourists come here, so it is wonderfully peaceful.

Isarlat (Swargasuli)

This slender seven-storey tower near Tripolia Bazaar was built by Sawai Ishwari Singh in 1749 to celebrate a victory. Climb its narrow stairs for a bird's-eye view of the old city.

Maharani ki Chhatri

Near the Amer road, these graceful cenotaphs honour the royal queens of Jaipur. Quiet, uncrowded and beautiful in the soft light of late afternoon.

CHAPTER FIVE

The Flavours of Rajasthan

Rajasthani cooking was shaped by the desert. With little water and few fresh vegetables, cooks relied on ingredients that keep well – lentils, gram flour, millets, dried beans and berries – and plenty of ghee. Jaipur adds the refinement of royal kitchens and a legendary sweet tooth. Most traditional food here is vegetarian, but the royal hunting tradition gave the region some famous meat dishes too.

Dal Baati Churma

The signature dish of Rajasthan: round wheat baatis baked over coals and soaked in ghee, served with spiced panchmel dal and sweet, crumbly churma.

Gatte ki Sabzi

Steamed gram-flour dumplings simmered in a tangy yoghurt curry – a desert-kitchen classic that needs no fresh vegetables.

Ker Sangri

Dried desert beans (sangri) and tangy wild berries (ker) cooked with spices – unique to Rajasthan, often served with bajra roti.

Laal Maas

A fiery mutton curry coloured deep red by Mathania chillies – once a favourite of royal hunting parties. Not for the faint-hearted!

Pyaaz Kachori

Jaipur's favourite breakfast – a crisp, flaky pastry with spiced onion filling, served hot with tamarind chutney.

Mirchi Vada

Large green chillies stuffed with spiced potato and fried in gram-flour batter – for those who love heat.

Bajre ki Roti & Lehsun Chutney

Hearty millet flatbread with fiery garlic chutney and white butter – rustic winter comfort food.

Rajasthani Kadhi

A thin, tangy yoghurt-and-gram-flour curry, often with pakoras, best eaten with rice or bajra roti.

CHAPTER FIVE

05

Sweets, Drinks & the Royal Thali

Ghevar

A honeycomb-textured festive sweet of the monsoon season, best enjoyed topped with malai and rabdi.

Mawa Kachori

A rich, sweet kachori stuffed with khoya and dry fruits, dipped in sugar syrup.

Feeni

Fine, crisp strands of fried dough, eaten with sweetened milk – a winter speciality around Makar Sankranti.

Kulhad Lassi & Masala Chai

Thick lassi in clay cups crowned with malai – and spiced chai, the fuel of every Jaipur street corner.

The Rajasthani Thali

A thali is a complete meal on one large plate: dal, two or three vegetables, kadhi, rotis or baati, rice, chutneys, papad, buttermilk and a sweet. In traditional restaurants refills are unlimited – eat slowly and say "bas" (enough) when you are full!

Eat Like a Local

- Breakfast is kachori and chai, eaten standing at a busy stall.
- Ask for "kam teekha" if you prefer less spice.
- Sweets are sold by weight – 100–250 g is plenty to taste.
- Seasonal treats: ghevar in the monsoon, feeni and gajak in winter.

05

CHAPTER FIVE

Where to Eat

Laxmi Misthan Bhandar (LMB)
📍 Johari Bazaar
Legendary sweets and Rajasthani thali in the heart of the old city.

Rawat Mishthan Bhandar
📍 Station Road
Famous for pyaaz kachori and mawa kachori.

Lassiwala
📍 MI Road
Thick lassi in clay kulhads – several neighbouring shops share the name.

Masala Chowk
📍 Ram Niwas Garden
Open-air food court bringing well-known street-food vendors together.

Pandit Kulfi
📍 Hawa Mahal Road
Much-loved kulfi in many flavours, a short walk from Hawa Mahal.

Gulab Ji Chai
📍 MI Road
A legendary tea stall – join the crowd for a cup of chai and bun-maska.

Chokhi Dhani
📍 Tonk Road
Rajasthani village resort – folk dance, camel rides and a traditional dinner.

CHAPTER SIX

Bazaar Guide

Shopping in Jaipur is an adventure. The bazaars of the walled city have traded jewels, textiles and crafts for nearly three centuries. Most shops open late morning (around 10:30–11 am) and stay busy until late evening; some markets observe a weekly holiday, so check before you go.

Johari Bazaar

Jewellery, gemstones, silver, and bandhej & lehariya sarees.

Best for: jewellery & sarees

Bapu Bazaar

Jaipuri razais, block-printed fabric, mojaris, perfumes and souvenirs.

Best for: textiles & souvenirs

Nehru Bazaar

Leather juttis, fabrics and everyday Rajasthani fashion at local prices.

Best for: juttis & fabric

Tripolia Bazaar

Colourful lac bangles, brass & iron ware and traditional kitchenware.

Best for: bangles & brass

Chandpole Bazaar

Marble and stone carvings, idols and handicrafts by local artisans.

Best for: marble & crafts

Kishanpole Bazaar

Textiles, tie-dye fabric and wooden handicrafts in the old city.

Best for: fabrics

MI Road

The city's main shopping street – showrooms, jewellers, Rajasthali emporium and cafés.

Best for: fixed-price shopping

Rajasthali Emporium

Government-run, fixed-price handicraft store on MI Road – great for price benchmarks.

Best for: authentic crafts

✦ Smart Shopper Tips

- Bargain politely in street bazaars – start at around half the asking price and meet in the middle.
- Ask for hallmarking on gold and a lab certificate for precious stones.
- Ignore "gem export" offers from touts or drivers; buy only from reputed shops with a bill.
- Check prices at Rajasthali first so you know what is fair.

CHAPTER SIX

Crafts of Jaipur – What to Buy

Blue Pottery

Jaipur's most famous craft, of Persian origin. Unusually, it is made not from clay but from quartz powder, glass and fuller's earth, painted in cobalt blue and turquoise. Look for tiles, vases, plates and door knobs.

Hand Block Printing

Carved wooden blocks stamp patterns onto cloth by hand. Sanganer is known for fine floral prints on light backgrounds; Bagru for earthy Dabu prints using a mud-resist technique.

Bandhej & Lehariya

Tie-dye textiles made by tying thousands of tiny knots before dyeing. Lehariya – the wave pattern – is traditionally worn during Teej and the monsoon.

Gems & Jewellery

Jaipur is one of the world's great gem-cutting centres, especially for emeralds. Look for Kundan (gold-foil setting) and Meenakari (colourful enamel work) jewellery.

Lac Bangles

Bright bangles of heated lac, decorated with glass, beads and mirrors. Watch artisans at work in Maniharon ka Rasta near Tripolia.

Jaipuri Razai

Feather-light cotton quilts, hand-filled and often block-printed – warm yet easy to pack.

Mojari & Jutti

Hand-stitched leather slippers with embroidery – soften them by wearing for a few days.

Kathputli & Miniature Paintings

Colourful string puppets of Rajasthani folk theatre, and fine miniature paintings in the Jaipur style – lovely gifts.

07

CHAPTER SEVEN

Festivals & Celebrations

Jaipur loves to celebrate. Plan your visit around a festival and you will see the city at its most colourful – but book hotels early, as these are busy times.

January	Makar Sankranti 14–15 Jan. The whole city takes to its rooftops to fly kites; the sky fills with colour and shouts of "Wo kaata!". Feeni and til sweets are shared.
	Jaipur Literature Festival Usually late January. One of the world's largest free literary festivals, with writers and thinkers from across the globe.
March – April	Holi Holika Dahan bonfires followed by Dhulandi, the festival of colours. The flower Holi at Govind Dev Ji temple is unforgettable. Most state monuments close on Dhulandi.
	Gangaur Celebrated for 18 days after Holi in honour of Goddess Gauri (Parvati). Women pray for marital happiness, and a royal procession of the goddess sets out from the City Palace through the old-city bazaars.
July – September	Hariyali Teej The monsoon festival of swings, green lehariya saris, mehendi and ghevar. Teej Mata's procession winds through the old city.
	Raksha Bandhan, Janmashtami & Ganesh Chaturthi Rakhi in August; midnight celebrations at Govind Dev Ji on Janmashtami; and a grand fair at Moti Dungri on Ganesh Chaturthi.
October – November	Navratri & Dussehra Nine nights of garba and dandiya, followed by towering Ravan effigies set ablaze on Dussehra.
	Diwali Jaipur's bazaars – Johari, Bapu, Chandpole, Nehru and MI Road – glow with spectacular lights and decorations. One of the best times to see the city.
December	Christmas & New Year Hotels and cafés host festive dinners; winter weddings fill the city with music and processions.

07

CHAPTER SEVEN

Festival Dates & Culture

Festival Dates 2026 & 2027

FESTIVAL	2026	2027
Holi (Dhulandi)	3–4 Mar	21–22 Mar
Gangaur	21 Mar	9 Apr
Hariyali Teej	15 Aug	4 Aug
Raksha Bandhan	28 Aug	17 Aug
Janmashtami	4 Sep	25 Aug
Ganesh Chaturthi	14 Sep	4 Sep
Navratri begins	11 Oct	30 Sep
Dussehra	20 Oct	9 Oct
Diwali	8 Nov	29 Oct
Makar Sankranti	14 Jan	14–15 Jan

Hindu festivals follow the lunar calendar, so dates change every year. Dates are as per popular calendars – confirm locally.

Music, Dance & Dress

Ghoomar

The graceful swirling dance of Rajasthani women in flared ghagras, performed at festivals and weddings.

Kalbeliya

The sinuous dance of the Kalbeliya community, inscribed by UNESCO as Intangible Cultural Heritage in 2010.

Kathputli

Traditional string-puppet theatre telling tales of kings and heroes – a favourite with children.

Safa & Poshak

Men wear colourful turbans (safa or pagdi); women wear the ghagra, kurti and odhni, often in bandhej or lehariya.

✦ Local Etiquette

- Greet people with “Khamma Ghani” or “Namaste”; adding “sa” or “ji” shows respect.
- Always ask before photographing people.
- Use your right hand to give and receive things.

08

CHAPTER EIGHT

Getting to Jaipur

By Air

Jaipur International Airport at Sanganer is about 12–13 km from the old city, with direct flights from all major Indian cities and select international routes. Prepaid taxis and app cabs are available at arrivals; the drive to the Pink City takes 30–45 minutes.

By Train

Jaipur Junction is the main station, well connected to Delhi, Agra, Mumbai, Ahmedabad and all major cities of Rajasthan. Fast trains reach from Delhi in about 4.5–5 hours. Gandhinagar and Durgapura are handy secondary stations. Railway enquiry: 139.

By Road

Jaipur is part of India's Golden Triangle. Delhi is about 280 km away (4.5–5.5 hours by road) and Agra about 240 km (around 4 hours). Sindhi Camp is the central bus stand for RSRTC and private buses, including comfortable AC coaches.

How Far from Hawa Mahal?

Straight-line distances; road distances are usually 20–40% longer. Allow extra time in old-city traffic, especially 5–8 pm.

CHAPTER EIGHT

08

Getting Around the City

Jaipur Metro – Pink Line

The Pink Line runs for about 12 km from Mansarovar to Badi Chaupar, with 11 stations. The last two stations are underground inside the walled city – the easiest way to reach Hawa Mahal and the bazaars without fighting traffic.

Useful stops: Railway Station (Jaipur Junction) · Sindhi Camp (bus stand) · Chhoti Chaupar (Tripolia, City Palace) · Badi Chaupar (Hawa Mahal, Johari Bazaar).

Auto-rickshaws

Everywhere and handy for short trips. Agree on the fare before you start, or book an auto through a ride-hailing app.

E-rickshaws & cycle-rickshaws

Perfect for the narrow lanes of the old city and short hops between bazaars.

App cabs & bike taxis

Uber, Ola and Rapido work across the city with upfront fares – the easiest option for most visitors.

Full-day taxi

For sightseeing, hire a car with driver for 8 hours / 80 km – ideal for Amer, Jaigarh and Nahargarh.

On foot

The best way to see the walled city. Wear comfortable shoes and start early, before the heat and traffic.

City buses

Low-cost buses connect most areas, but routes can be confusing for first-time visitors.

✦ Money & Connectivity

- UPI and cards are widely accepted; keep some cash for small vendors and autos.
- Carry a power bank and download offline maps as a backup.
- ATMs are easy to find across the city.

09

CHAPTER NINE

Where to Stay

Old City (Pink City)

Best for: heritage lovers

- ✓ Walk to Hawa Mahal, City Palace & bazaars
- ✓ Charming havelis and guesthouses
- ! Busy, noisy streets
- ! Parking can be difficult

MI Road · C-Scheme · Bani Park

Best for: first-time visitors

- ✓ Central, close to the railway station
- ✓ Great cafés, restaurants and shops
- ! City traffic at peak hours

Amer Road · Jal Mahal

Best for: couples & luxury stays

- ✓ Heritage resorts and palace hotels
- ✓ Quiet, scenic, close to Amer Fort
- ! Farther from city restaurants and nightlife

Malviya Nagar · Tonk Road

Best for: families & business

- ✓ Modern hotels, malls and hospitals nearby
- ✓ Close to the airport
- ! 20–30 min drive to the old city

Types of Stays

Palace & heritage hotels
Live like royalty in former palaces and noble homes – iconic names include Rambagh Palace, Jai Mahal Palace, Samode Haveli and Narain Niwas Palace.

Haveli guesthouses & homestays
Family-run stays with painted walls, courtyards and home-cooked food – warm, personal and good value.

Boutique & business hotels
Modern comfort in C-Scheme, Tonk Road and Malviya Nagar, often with rooftop restaurants.

Hostels
Budget-friendly dorms and private rooms, popular with backpackers in the old city and Bani Park.

✦ Booking Tips

- Book early for October–March, Diwali, the wedding season and the literature festival.
- A rooftop with a view of Nahargarh or the old city is worth paying a little extra for.
- In the old city, ask about parking and car access to the hotel door.

CHAPTER TEN

Day Trips from Jaipur

Jaipur makes a perfect base for exploring the region. Distances below are approximate road distances from the city centre.

95 km

Abhaneri – Chand Baori

🚗 ~2 hrs

One of India's deepest and most photogenic stepwells, built around the 9th century, with about 3,500 steps arranged across 13 levels. Next to it stands the ancient Harshat Mata temple. An easy stop on the way to Agra.

80 km

Sambhar Salt Lake

🚗 ~1.5–2 hrs

India's largest inland salt lake and a protected wetland. Walk on surreal white salt flats, see salt-making up close and, in winter (roughly Nov–Feb), spot flocks of flamingos.

145 km

Ajmer & Pushkar

🚗 ~3 hrs

Visit the revered Dargah of Khwaja Moinuddin Chishti in Ajmer, then continue to Pushkar with its sacred lake, bathing ghats and the rare Brahma Temple. The famous Pushkar Fair takes place in Oct–Nov.

165 km

Ranthambore

🚗 ~3.5 hrs

One of India's best places to see wild tigers. Safaris run in zones of the national park; the hilltop Ranthambore Fort is a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Core zones usually close in the monsoon – book safaris well in advance on the official portal.

10

CHAPTER TEN

More Day Trips

85 km

Bhangarh Fort

~2 hrs

Atmospheric 17th-century ruins of a town in the Aravalli hills, famed as one of India's most "haunted" places. Entry is allowed only between sunrise and sunset.

40 km

Samode

~1 hr

A pretty village in the hills with the magnificent Samode Palace, now a heritage hotel famed for its painted halls. Visits to the palace may need a meal or stay reservation.

30 km

Bagru & Sanganer

~1 hr

Villages of hand block printing. Watch artisans carve blocks, print and dye fabric, and buy directly from workshops – Sanganer is also known for handmade paper.

30 km

Chandlai Lake

~1 hr

A quiet wetland south of the city where migratory birds – including flamingos – gather in winter. Go at sunrise with binoculars.

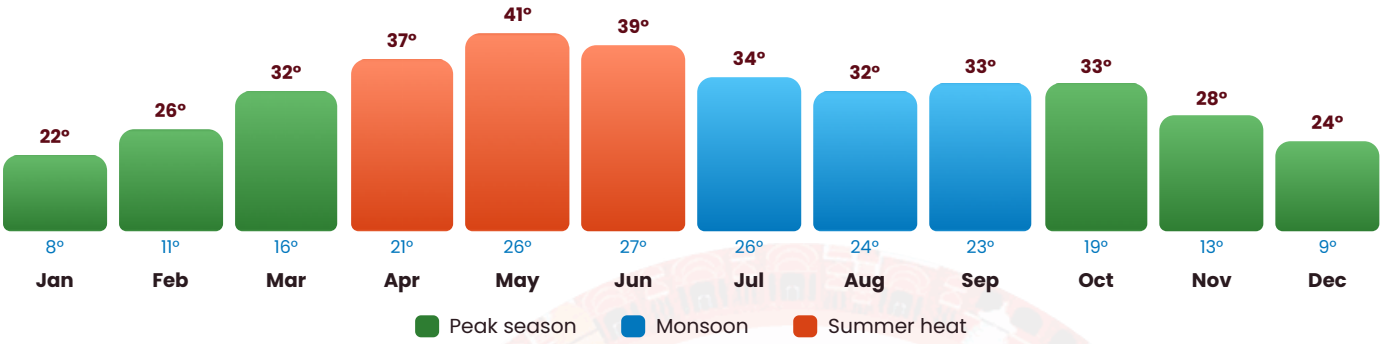

✦ Day-Trip Tips

- Start by 7 am to make the most of cooler hours.
- Carry water, snacks, cash and a scarf for religious sites.
- Hire a car with driver for the full day – it is the most flexible option.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

11 Best Time to Visit

October to March is the most comfortable time to explore Jaipur, with warm sunny days and cool nights. April to June is very hot – plan sightseeing for early mornings. July to September brings monsoon rain, green hills and fewer tourists.

MONTH	HIGH / LOW	WHAT TO EXPECT
Jan	22° / 8°C	Cool mornings, sunny days
Feb	26° / 11°C	Pleasant and dry
Mar	32° / 16°C	Warming up; Holi & Gangaur
Apr	37° / 21°C	Hot afternoons
May	41° / 26°C	Very hot and dusty
Jun	39° / 27°C	Hot; first showers late June
Jul	34° / 26°C	Monsoon rains
Aug	32° / 24°C	Green & humid; Teej
Sep	33° / 23°C	Rains taper off
Oct	33° / 19°C	Pleasant; Navratri & Dussehra
Nov	28° / 13°C	Peak season; Diwali
Dec	24° / 9°C	Cool; Christmas & New Year

Approximate long-term averages; actual weather varies year to year.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

11 Packing Checklist

- Keep digital copies of tickets and IDs on your phone.
- Carry your hotel's address card – handy for auto drivers.

CHAPTER TWELVE

12

Photography Guide

🌅 Sunrise

Hawa Mahal

The east-facing façade glows in the morning sun. Shoot from the rooftop cafés across the road.

🌄 Early morning

Patrika Gate

Arrive by 7–8 am for empty corridors. A wide-angle lens captures the painted arches best.

🌄 Early morning

Panna Meena ka Kund

Perfect symmetry with soft light. Walking on the steps is often restricted – shoot from the edge.

☀️ Morning

Amer Fort

Capture the fort reflected in Maota Lake from the road below, then the Sheesh Mahal inside.

☀️ Morning

City Palace – Peacock Gate

Visit soon after opening to photograph the famous Pritam Niwas Chowk doorways without crowds.

🌇 Sunset

Nahargarh Fort

Golden-hour panorama of the whole Pink City. Stay on for the city lights.

🌇 Sunset

Jal Mahal

Warm light and reflections on Man Sagar Lake from the promenade.

🌙 Night

Albert Hall Museum

Beautifully illuminated after dark – shoot from the road in front for symmetry.

🌇 Late afternoon

Galtaji & Sun Temple

Climb to the Surya Mandir above Galta for a sunset view over the city.

Beat the Crowds

- Quietest: weekday mornings, right at opening time.
- Busiest: weekends, public holidays and festival days.
- Midday: harsh light and heat – save it for museums and lunch.

Photo Etiquette

- Always ask before photographing people; some may expect a small tip.
- Some museums charge for cameras or ban photography in certain galleries.
- Drones need prior permission – do not fly them at monuments.

12

Hidden Gems

Jawahar Kala Kendra

An arts centre designed by architect Charles Correa, inspired by the nine-square plan of old Jaipur. Exhibitions, theatre, music and a lovely café.

Kanak Vrindavan

Peaceful landscaped gardens and temples on the road to Amer, at the foot of the Nahargarh hills.

Isarlat Tower

Climb the 18th-century victory tower near Tripolia for a bird's-eye view of the old city.

Old City walk at dawn

Wander Tripolia, Chaura Rasta and the bazaars before shops open – chai stalls, temples and pink façades in soft light.

Maniharon ka Rasta

Watch lac-bangle makers heat, shape and decorate bangles by hand – and buy straight from them.

Royal Gaitor at golden hour

The marble cenotaphs glow in late-afternoon light, with Nahargarh rising behind.

Block-printing workshops

Many workshops in Sanganer and Bagru welcome visitors – some offer short hands-on sessions.

Amer at sunrise

The road around Maota Lake is magical at sunrise, before the fort opens and the crowds arrive.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

13 Family & Accessibility Guide

PLACE	WALKING	KIDS	SENIORS / WHEELCHAIR
Amer Fort	Steep	★★★★★	Long ramps and stairs; jeeps can take you up to the main gate. Parts are hard for wheelchairs.
City Palace	Easy	★★★★☆	Mostly flat courtyards; ground-floor galleries are fairly accessible.
Hawa Mahal	Moderate	★★★★☆	Upper levels are reached by narrow ramps rather than stairs; can be tiring and crowded.
Jantar Mantar	Easy	★★★★★	Flat, open grounds – very little shade, so avoid midday in summer.
Albert Hall Museum	Easy	★★★★★	Ground-floor galleries are easy; kids love the Egyptian mummy.
Nahargarh Fort	Moderate	★★★★☆	Drive almost to the top; some uneven paths and steps inside.
Jaigarh Fort	Moderate	★★★★★	Large fort with long walks; kids enjoy the giant Jaivana cannon.
Jal Mahal promenade	Easy	★★★★☆	Flat lakeside walk – stroller and wheelchair friendly.
Chokhi Dhani	Easy	★★★★★	Great for families – folk shows, puppetry, rides and food.

Kids Will Love

- The giant Jaivana cannon at Jaigarh
- The Egyptian mummy at Albert Hall
- Puppet shows and rides at Chokhi Dhani
- Flying kites on Makar Sankranti
- Watching the sundial shadow move at Jantar Mantar

Tips for Seniors

- Visit forts early and use jeeps or vehicles to the top where available.
- Plan one big monument per half-day, with rest breaks in between.
- Carry water, a cap and any regular medicines.

General guidance only – facilities and access can change.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

13 Safety & Responsible Travel

Jaipur is a friendly, welcoming city and most visits are trouble-free. A little awareness goes a long way.

⚠️ Common Scams

- "Gem export" deals promising big profits – always a scam.
- Drivers or touts taking you to shops for commission.
- Unofficial "guides" at monument gates – hire licensed guides who carry an ID card.
- Overcharging autos – agree the fare first or use an app.

👩 Women Travellers

- Dress modestly in the old city and at religious sites.
- Use app cabs at night and share your live location.
- Women helpline: 1090 · Emergency: 112.

💧 Health

- Drink sealed bottled or filtered water.
- Avoid the midday sun in summer; carry ORS.
- Use mosquito repellent during the monsoon.

🏛️ Respect Heritage

- Never scratch or write on monument walls.
- Follow photography and drone rules.
- Rajasthan has banned polythene carry bags – take a cloth bag.

🐒 Animals

- Do not feed the monkeys at Galtaji and other temples.
- Keep food and shiny objects out of sight near monkeys.
- Choose animal-friendly experiences.

📱 Useful Apps

- Uber, Ola, Rapido – cabs, autos and bike taxis
- Google Maps – download Jaipur for offline use
- Any UPI app – pay at almost every shop and stall
- OBMS – official Rajasthan monument tickets
- IRCTC – train tickets and enquiries

✦ Tipping Guide

- Restaurants: about 5–10% if service is not included.
- Guides: tip based on the length and quality of the tour.
- Drivers for a full day: a small tip is appreciated.
- Hotel staff and porters: small tips for good service.
